Donahay Faces Rough Sledding; All Republicans In Offices

COLUMBUS, O., November 7.—(By the United Press.)—His reelection and the formalities of giving out statements of gratitude duly discharged, Governor Donahay today turned his attention toward his inauguration and the problems of his second term in office.

The governor's inaugural is to be a simple matter, much simpler in fact than the one two years ago and, in fact, was the simplest in the state's history.

But the governor's second term in office is a horse of a different color and his fair to be even more trying and complex than the one he is just completing. During the present term Donahay's chief worries came from two sources—the legislature, which being Republican, opposed his wishes in most things, and general of the lesser state officers, chiefly, Attorney General C. C. Crabbe, who, being Republican, were the governor's principal checkers.

Donahay faces his second term with even stronger Republican forces in the legislature and with the other elective officers of the state solidly Republican. It is reasonable to suppose therefore that the governor's problems will only be increased with the incoming general assembly and Donahay is taking this into consideration in preparing his first message to the body which convenes in January.

The governor plans to take the oath of office on January 12, before a joint session of the house and senate. Immediately after being sworn in he will be reading his formal message which will also serve as his inaugural address.

Donahay anticipates making no changes in his cabinet and his two appointments to the industrial commission and two to the civil service commission require confirmation of the senate.

Election of Brookhart To Be Contested

DES MOINES, IOWA, November 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—With indications pointing to a possible contest in the United States senate over the seat of Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Republican, preparations were made throughout Iowa today for the official count to be started next Monday.

The lead of Senator Brookhart over Daniel P. Steck, Democratic candidate, today remained at 1,113. This figure probably will remain unchanged as the unofficial majority unless county auditors, who still were scanning their records for possible errors, find discrepancies that were not uncovered in the thorough re-check made yesterday.

The first definite word of a possible contest came last night with the announcement by Secretary of State Ramsey that he had been advised by Democratic National Committee Clyde L. Heering that the senatorial race would be contested. Secretary Ramsey notified county auditors to take great care in preservation of the ballots preparatory to the official count.

Senator Brookhart considers himself elected.

Heisman was killed in the "vice district" here yesterday as the aftermath of a celebration of an athletic victory. Heisman was a star of the Purdue Athletic Club in the Holy Name Baseball League.

The other four were seriously injured. A state law compelling drivers of motor vehicles to stop on approaching a crossing not guarded by a watchman. Witnesses say the bus chauffeur did not.

Complete New Adjustment In Ranks of Democrats Seen As Result of Overwhelming Defeat

(By PAUL MALLON)
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, D. C., November 7.—(By the United Press.)—A complete new adjustment of lines within the Democratic party was foreseen by its leaders here today as result of the crushing defeat of its candidates in the election.

Friends of John W. Davis are openly bitter at what they believe was the failure of some of the former leaders of the party to contribute any aid whatever to the count of the ballots. They are certain that the count of the ballots proves that not everything possible was done in aid and that in some vital sectors he was even "double-crossed" by those purporting to be his friends.

Some of those who stood by Davis throughout his difficult campaign have been severely criticized. The United Press learns, that the least he can do is to "even the scales with his enemies" before he loses hold upon the leadership. They want him to strike back.

They do not think Davis could have won under any circumstances but they do feel he could have made a showing twice as strong if all the elements in the party had worked as they would have in an ordinary campaign. "They firmly believe some 'swapping' was done by state leaders in some sections in the hope of saving their state tickets against the Coolidge wave."

Davis, however, is "sick of politics." He is prepared to step back into his law practice which he does not desire. He is prepared to step back into his law practice which he does not desire.

Clem Shaver, chairman of the Democratic National Committee is of the same opinion as Davis. At any moment he may chuck up his job and go back to West Virginia.

Coolidge, Given Own Cabinet and New Congress, May Develop New Type of Executive for Nation

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright 1924 by Times Publishing Company)
WASHINGTON, November 7.—Calvin Coolidge of the campaign, silent, on a disciple of the political faith which utters no superfluous word or undertakes no necessary task, and Calvin Coolidge of tomorrow with the barrier of a third term giving him the strength to be an independent executive may develop the contrast which for many months his closest friends have been privately predicting.

There is no question but that the personality of Calvin Coolidge is to a large extent unknown. As Governor of Massachusetts he conducted a time of leadership which were not asserted in the past year here as President of the United States especially in dealing with congress. The explanation usually made was that in a political year much must be forgiven which ordinarily would not be countenanced.

Enough of the President's attitude toward public questions has been revealed to show that he moves along conservative lines and that once he takes his position he is not given to reversals or wavering. But in dealing with Congress the president has not been particularly fortunate. His own leaders have not been able to work out a line that was satisfactory. The fact that the balance of power was held by the La Follette Republicans in the two houses of congress has usually been accepted as an excuse for what happened but those who follow the maneuvers of Congress can not but concede that many of the advantages obtained by the radicals in the last session of Congress were due to the mistakes in tactics of the conservative leaders.

Senate Will Be Hard To Manage

With the house in control of the conservative Republicans, there will be a better opportunity for the administration to get its legislation through than before. In the Senate, however, the moderate progressives still can swing away from the administration. The senate will prove the stumbling block for many pieces of legislation which should go through the House rather easily.

The psychological effect of the President's victory will be felt all along the (Continued On Page Nineteen)

Condition of Mrs. Harding Improving

MARION, O., November 7.—(By the United Press.)—The condition of Mrs. Warren G. Harding is improving steadily, it was said early today at White Oak farm.

Dr. Carl Sawyer, her physician, will probably have a formal statement later in the day.

Pneumonic Plague Claims More Victims

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 7.—Two additional victims of pneumonic plague, now prevalent in Los Angeles, died within the last 24 hours, bringing the total death from the malady to 23 since its inception last month. Six new cases were discovered in the quarantined area. Vigorous rat extermination campaigns are under way in the harbor district in the quarantine areas, and in Pasadena, north of here.

Radio Wave From Britain "Takes Picture" In New York City

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—A radio wave flashed across the ocean from England last night, set off a powder flashlight, clicked a camera and made a photograph in the Grand Central Palace at a radio exposition. Major General J. G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America; Helen Keller and Harold Holsler, director of the exposition, were photographed by the unseen radio photographer who was stationed in Carnarvon, Wales.

"Comic Opera" Game Of Tag Staged On Sea By Brazilian Warships

(By BRYANT POWERS)
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
BUENOS AIRES, November 7.—(By the United Press.)—Two principal units of the Brazilian navy, the great dreadnaughts Minas, Geraes and Sao Paulo, were chasing each other up and down the South Atlantic coast today while all South America looked on in amazement at the latest development in Brazil's disturbed political situation.

Part of the crew of the Sao Paulo rebelled Monday and under command of two lieutenants, seized the big vessel and made off to sea, passing the heavy land batteries in the forts which guard the entrance to Guanabara Bay. Rio's huge harbor, despite an apparently heavy bombardment.

The Minas was taken up the pursuit yesterday night, accompanied by two submarines, and with her battle flag flying at her mast-head. The Minas Geraes was recommissioned in the Brooklyn Navy Yard about two years ago and her guns are said to outrange those of the Sao Paulo, which will give her a decided advantage in event of combat.

Captain Frederico De Noronha is commanding the vessel.

Coolidge Secures 382 Votes In the Electoral College

(By UNITED PRESS)
With today's returns showing North Dakota safely in the Coolidge column and New Mexico apparently swung at the last minute to President Coolidge, the latter's victory in Tuesday election has grown and the relative position of the candidates in the electoral college now is:

Coolidge	382
Davis	136
LaFollette	13

By this Mr. Coolidge is seen to have come within 23 votes in the electoral college of equalling Warren G. Harding's vote of 404 three years ago.

Senator Brookhart's apparent narrow victory in Iowa and Senator Magnus Johnson's defeat in Minnesota, means the party standing in the senate will be as forecast by the United Press:

Republicans	55
Democrats	40
Farmer-Labor	1

The figure is based on the virtual certainty that when Connecticut holds its special election for a successor to the late Senator Brandegee, the winner will be a Republican. Among the Republicans, 55 votes, however, six are designated as "swing" votes, while the Democrats should have no difficulty whatever in organizing the senate there will be much legislation on which the majority will be dangerously scanty.

New Congress To Be Subject To Firm Hand of Administration; Coolidge Men at Every Post

(By DALE VAN EVERY)
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, D. C., November 7.—(By the United Press.)—The new congress will be subject to the firm hand of the administration with one of its loyal supporters at almost every post of importance.

Unlike the present congress which the progressives controlled through their balance of power, the new congress will have a small, though clear, Republican majority. This majority may divide later in the session as the mild progressives in the senate recover confidence but it will function at the start when the congress is being organized.

Therefore, in the organization, every committee, chairmanship, even every committee assignment, will be shaped as much as possible to the new policy of keeping a Republican congress in step with a Republican president who has just won a tremendous victory at the polls.

The new vice president, Charles G. Dawes, will preside over the senate while the speakership of the house will fall, according to present party plans, to either Nicholas Longworth, present floor leader, or to Martin B. Madden, of Illinois, chairman of the appropriations committee.

On account of the serious illness of Senator Lodge, Republican floor leader in the senate, the appointment of him will never be seriously perfect, until each has at least eighty votes of clothes. Jean Paton, famous French designer, said at a luncheon here.

Another mild progressive, Senator Johnson, California, is in line to succeed the late Senator Colt as chairman of the immigration committee.

A movement was under way in Republican senatorial circles today to oust Senator LaFollette from his status as a Republican senator. On account of his seniority he is near the top in a number of the most important committees in the senate. On account of the traditional reluctance to break senate precedents, however, some hesitation was felt about "reading LaFollette out of the party," even though he did conduct a personal campaign against a Republican president.

WRECK IN TUNNEL; SURVIVORS IN PANIC CONTROL OF RAIL BOARD OVER UNIONS

ROUEN, FRANCE, November 7.—(By the United Press.)—A wreck occurred in the pitch darkness of the mile long railway tunnel near Rouen last night, when the London Express, carrying Americans and many British from Paris to Havre, was derailed.

At least two persons were killed and six seriously injured. Walter Duranty, Moscow correspondent of the New York Times, had both legs badly broken.

Four cars of the Express, including the diner, jumped the rails while the boat train was roaring through the tunnel. Following the splintering crash, scenes of the wildest confusion ensued in the darkness. While rescue workers were struggling with lanterns to get out the victims, a freight train thundered into the tunnel and smashed into the debris.

Darkness hindered the rescue work. The tunnel is a little distance from Rouen. There was a panic among the survivors and the full extent of the catastrophe could not at first be determined.

Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois Are In Fire Belt

CINCINNATI, O., November 7.—(By the United Press.)—Forest fires were raging in four states today. Sections of Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, were turning out to fight the flames which were adding hourly to damages already reaching hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Several small towns were threatened in the vicinity of Irvine, Ky., where fire is sweeping the dry timber of a two mountain ridge.

Five hundred volunteers were plowing two guards around 10,000,000 gallons of crude oil in tanks at Irvine to check the advance of flames reported to be within half a mile of the oil.

Five hundred acres of timber land near Columbus, Ind., were in flames and 200 men were fighting further advances.

Rains were reported subsiding from raging in the Hocking Valley, where coal operators were taking men from the mines to fight the flames. Danger is still considered great in this region, however.

Public schools were dismissed in Meigs, Ohio, Monday, and in Cumberland counties in Kentucky so the pupils could help their elders with relief measures.

Hundreds of families have been driven from their homes in the Kentucky hills by smoke and flames. Ten homes were wiped out near Irvine, where state officials are investigating reports of arson.

Carless hunters, however, are to blame for most of the fires as timber in that section is crackling dry from weeks of drought.

Several residences were destroyed near Sacramento, Island, Basin, and Glover, Kentucky, which are directly in the path of the flames. Appeals were coming in from dozens of smaller towns saying that unless additional fire-fighters are sent, or rain comes, they will be wiped out.

Woods On Fire, Started By Locomotive Sparks

WARSAW, IND., November 7.—(By the United Press.)—A forest fire presumably starting from a spark from a locomotive, was sweeping the woods between Larwill and Perinton in Kosciusko county today. Thousands of dollars worth of timber were destroyed and farm buildings were threatened.

Timber Land Under Fire

MOUNT VERNON, ILL., November 7.—(By the United Press.)—Several thousand acres of forest land along the Big Muddy River, 10 miles south of here were burning today according to reports here.

Fight Fire—Child Shook Brother

CANTON, O., November 7.—(By the United Press.)—While Mr. and Mrs. William Neal, residing on the Stahl farm near Navarre, were fighting a fire in the woods that threatened their home early Thursday evening, their four-year-old son, Thomas, took a revolver from under his mother's pillow and shot his two-year-old brother, William, Jr. The child died at the Massillon city hospital this morning.

Neal is employed in the steel mills at night and the revolver was customarily left under Mrs. Neal's pillow as a protection to her. The children knew of its hiding place, but had never trifled with the gun before.

The death of the baby is the second fatal shooting on the Stahl farm. Chris Stahl, a former owner, having been murdered there twenty years ago.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS., November 7.—(By the Associated Press)—With the express disapproval of James Lucey, shoe maker and close friend of President Coolidge, who was defeated for state representative Tuesday, friends of Mr. Lucey today prepared to ask for a recount of the vote. On the face of the returns, James H. O'Dea, Democrat, defeated Mr. Lucey by 183 votes, but friends of the shoemaker expressed the belief that errors had occurred in the count. Mr. Lucey, in opposing the recount, said that not only was he not dissatisfied with the outcome, but he was surprised at the strength of the support given to him.

While one patient may get well after a few Adjustments, another patient apparently showing the same symptoms, may not get as immediate results. As we have not handled your case, we do not know the extent of nerve pressure in your spine. In all probability there is a condition present that demands the element of time. No two cases being alike, each case is a study in itself, and must be adjusted as the case demands. Did you take your Adjustments regularly? Did you get them daily, for awhile at least? Traylor and Adkins Indicted;
Will Soon Enter Their Pleas

Leney Traylor and Jason Adkins are charged with first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Edward D. Funk, New Boston oil station owner, in a joint indictment returned by a grand jury in Common Pleas court yesterday afternoon.

Funk was shot to death by Traylor in his place of business early on the night of Oct. 21 in the commission of a robbery, according to the confession of the prisoner soon after his arrest, and Adkins admitted driving the automobile which carried the gunman away from the scene of the crime.

The indictments against the two men were brought by the grand jury after they had heard the details of the tragedy from the lips of witnesses. The two bills were returned shortly after three o'clock yesterday afternoon and less than an hour later Clerk John W. Hall sent certified copies to the sheriff's office and the indictments were served upon Traylor and Adkins by Deputy Sheriff Elza Miller. The two prisoners will probably be brought before Judge Thomas in Common Pleas court within a day or two to plead to the charges against them.

JUDGE BEN LINDSEY
PUSHED FOR REELECTION
DENVER, Col., Nov. 7.—The question of whether Judge Benjamin B. Lindsey, Denver's nationally known juvenile judge, had been returned to office in his race with Judge Royal B. Graham, Republican, still was undecided tonight. Although complete unofficial returns gave him a lead of 207 votes over Judge Graham, announcement by the election commissioners that approximately 750 absentee votes were yet unaccounted for, threw an air of uncertainty about the election. Pending the official count, which will start tomorrow, Judge Lindsey is having the ballot boxes guarded at his own expense.

The Polo Club, composed of war veterans, according to its secretary, numbers 63,000 members in Chicago, will sponsor the test. The men, all of whom are of different religious denominations, will be found with wine in their possession. They will demand jury trials, said Mr. Riley.

U. S. WOMEN GOVERNORS

Women governors are almost inconceivable to the masculine population here, La Prensa says.

Star End Of Football Team Is Missing

CHICAGO, November 7.—(By the Associated Press)—Dunage county authorities have been asked to search for Danny Place, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Place, of Bloomington, Pa., and star end of the Wheaton College football team who disappeared from the campus of the suburban school, near here, three weeks ago.

The college faculty, assisting in the search, voted to keep the disappearance a secret because of wrong impressions of the institutions that might result. J. A. Weaver, treasurer, said.

Place was graduated two years ago from a Missionary Training School at Nyack, N. Y., and was completing a theological course at Wheaton, college authorities said.

Sunday Sends Congratulations To Coolidge

NASHVILLE, TENN., November 7.—(By the Associated Press)—Billy Sunday sent the following telegram to President Coolidge from here:

"President Calvin Coolidge: 'One year ago when I was preaching in Charleston, S. C., you honored me with an invitation to eat beans and brown bread with you and Mrs. Coolidge on my way home. 'I told you then to stick out the colors with which you would like to decorate the White House as the American people would keep you there four years longer. You said with a smile: 'Do you believe they will?' and I told you I thought it was a hundred to one shot. 'They surely made good that prediction on Tuesday. The fattest turkey from my Oregon ranch will be there for your Thanksgiving dinner. God bless you.'"

(Signed) "WILLIAM A. SUNDAY."

Healthy, Happy Children is Mother's Greatest Joy

New Way to Take Cod Liver Oil—Greatest Tonic and Builder of Firm Flesh and Sturdy Bones in the World.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets

Of course, all mothers—and grandmothers too for that matter—know that the greatest builder of firm, healthy flesh in thin, puny, run down children is cod liver oil, and especially where there are any signs of Rickets.

But here's something every mother doesn't know—Cod Liver Oil helps to make strong, healthy bones—and even helps to make better teeth.

Yes, it's true: Doctors know it.

Dentists know it—chemists know it.

And now here's another surprise! No more will the kiddies have to take the vile, nasty tasting, evil smelling oil that nine times in ten disturbs their sensitive stomachs and almost turns them inside out.

Never again thank goodness, will they even have to smell the vile stuff, for now science has given us—and people who keep up with the times are taking—McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets—sugar coated and as easy to take as candy.

So now you can go ahead and make the sickly youngsters strong and well—make the puny one put on good solid flesh—and if any one of them has Rickets you can conquer that too.

Mother: Try McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets for 30 days if any of your children aren't up to par. You'll be surprised at the quick help they will give them, and if you aren't satisfied with results, Fisher & Birch, Water Bros., Stewart's Out Rate Drug Store, or the druggist you purchased them from will return your money. One New Jersey boy gained 11 1/2 pounds in 7 weeks. Be sure and get the original and genuine McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets.—Advertisement.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woe, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—I am again coming to you for advice. I have been going gladly with a fellow for four months. Now, Dolly, he is talking about leaving soon and says he will be gone during marriage would indicate that he loves me and all that is keep him here this long is me. He has asked me not to go with anyone else while he is gone. Do you think he will ever come back to me again or is he trying to bluff me out? I am sure he is going away. And, Dolly, it would break my heart to give him up as I know I cannot love another as I love him.

DOWNHEARTED GIRL.
Unless he asks you to marry him, and wait until he returns you are very foolish to make any promises, or to tell him that you will not go with any one else. You haven't been going with him long enough to get so crazy about him, and if I were you I would not create a scene when he goes away. It won't break your heart. You will get over it, even if you never look the same.

Dear Dolly—If a couple is separated, can the woman take their child away from her husband, if she is as it to raise it as he is? She has been accused of stepping out with other men during their married life, but her husband refused to take her any place or give her any pleasure in life. Please quote me the law on this subject.

—INTERESTED NEIGHBOR.

The law usually gives a child to its mother. If, however, her conduct during marriage would indicate that she would not be the right kind of mother for the child, the court would award the child to the father if he could give a satisfactory reason why he should have it and could give it a better home than its mother.

Dear Dolly—I have read your column in the paper so often and you seem to give such good advice that I thought perhaps you could help me. I have always had thick, clumsy ankles since the day I was born, and have never been able to reduce them. I have tried stationary running also, these rubber ankle reducers and nothing seems to help. I really think they were an inheritance, as my grandmother always had them. Now if there is anything that you can recommend I would gladly appreciate it. I am now 20 years of age.

—BROWN EYES.

If you have had clumsy ankles since the day you were born it is useless to try to get rid of them, as they are probably hereditary. The stationary running you speak of may help to develop them.

Dear Dolly—Please tell me what will keep your feet from swelling. I have tried everything, but it does not good. I wash my feet several times a week, but they sweat so that they blister and get so sore that I can hardly walk. Now, Dolly, I hate to have my feet this way, as there is always more or less of an odor coming from them. Please tell me what to do about it.

—A BUSY HOUSEWIFE.

Odorous perspiration of the feet may be a disease of the skin, of its glands or dependent upon some disease of the system which first must be removed before its cure is possible. Clean hose should be put on every day, and a change of shoes is also advantageous. If this is not possible, insoles may be worn which can be changed with the hose. A hot foot bath in salt or borax water every night will also help some. Sometimes wool hose will cause the feet to become soft and burn. Patent leather shoes will also cause some people's feet to burn and hurt. You might drop some of the moisture. A few drops of formaldehyde in a basin of water is also recommended as a good foot wash for odorous feet.

William—Your question involves so much that is legal that I can only refer you to a lawyer. Of course, I could answer your question, but I don't want to cheat an attorney out of a job.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

THE BROWNIES SAVE JACK'S HOUSE

"How do you do?" said the white crow.

"Don't you worry," said Mister Pim Pim inside. The brownie man, to the twins.

"Why it wouldn't matter if you were stuck on a mountain twice as high as this one. All I have to do is to call my million brownies and your troubles will be over."

"It's a good thing you came, that's all I've got to say," said Nancy. "Not that Nick and I couldn't get away if we wanted to with our magic shoes."

"Everything but the House-That-Jack-Built would be too heavy for us to carry. It would just stick up here on this old mountain top forever."

Mister Pim Pim took a whistle out of his pocket and blew and blew. At that point of time the mountain swayed up the sides of the mountain, making funny noises as they came.

And they picked up the House-That-Jack-Built on their shoulders as though it was made of cardboard, and shouting and singing, they bore it down a steep path with Nancy and

"Oh, are you magic?" asked Nick. "I never saw a white crow."

"No, sir, I'm not magic any more than a hard-boiled egg," laughed the crow. "I'm a mountain crow and lots of mountain crows are white. Jack speaking of magic, did it ever occur to you that wisdom is worth a truce and times more than all the magic in the world? I've got a wise head, I have, and I use it. I have heard all your troubles and I've been thinking and thinking. I'm going to help you."

"Good!" declared Mister Pim Pim. "Let's hear it."

"Well to begin with," said the crow. "Mother Brown is a very good friend of mine. She comes to the mountain top every day with her broom and sweeps my nest out and tidies up for me. I'm going to tell her about everything and together we shall hunt up Yum Yum Land and Daddy Gander."

"But we're miles and miles from Yum Yum Land!" said Nick. "You'll never find it."

"Of course we will!" cried the crow. "The Yum Yum Landers are the greatest eaters in the world. You can hear the people going 'yum yum' at their meals, miles away. It's very unusual, but true. But I'd better be off. Good-bye!"

"Good-bye!" called Mister Pim Pim and the twins.

TAFT PLANS FINANCIAL AID FOR OHIO CITIES

CINCINNATI, Nov. 7.—New plans for financial relief of Ohio cities will be introduced in the next legislature by Representative Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, who was re-elected Tuesday. He is composing a series of bills, all to constitute a permanent taxation program for the state, but with a generous measure of local autonomy, he announced.

One of the bills will provide that statutory tax limitations shall not apply to any charter city that has written a limitation of its own charter.

MRS. ROSS, NEW GOVERNOR OF WYOMING TO CONDUCT OFFICE WITHOUT ADVISERS

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Nov. 7.—Determination to conduct the Governor's office independently and "without the aid of advisers," was voiced today by Mrs. Nellie T. Ross, Wyoming's newly elected Governor, who said in a statement today:

"It is only through the death of my husband that I am Governor of this state. I would never have sought the office on my own volition.

"I shall carry on as my husband would have carried on. I shall approach every question open-mindedly and without the aid of advisers."

Eugene L. Sullivan, Republican, whom she defeated for the office, in a telegram of congratulations, said: "Accept my congratulations on your splendid victory. It is a high compliment to the memory of your dead husband, and an expression of confidence of the people in your ability to conduct the affairs of the state."

Greenup Man Accidentally Shot At Belling Party

GREENUP, November 7.—A E. Green was accidentally shot last night about 8 o'clock, when a belling crowd was serenading Mr. and Mrs. John Wheeler at their home at Duke Post Office. Green was one of the members of the belling crowd and was shot when a revolver in the hands of one of the members of the crowd, was accidentally discharged. The bullet which was from a thirty-eight special caliber revolver, entered the fleshy part of Green's right arm and entered the body under his right arm, ranging upward and came out about eight inches from his spine. He was brought to the office of Dr. C. P. Penn, in this village, where the wound was dressed and he was then taken to his home at Duke Post Office.

Out Of The High Rent District

AMAZING! That's what the SAVINGS are at Steinkamp's during this sale. First you should know that we save $1,350.00 per month on rent alone, by operating in the LOW RENT DISTRICT. Only last week as stated in Thursday's Times, property on Sixth St., just east of Chillicothe sold for $600.00 per ft. — If property is worth a price like that on Sixth St., what would it be worth on Chillicothe or Gallia St.? Now an Additional Saving is offered you during THE WEST END MERCHANT'S

Abie's Irish Rose Opens Three Days'

Engagement Here Monday; Seats On Sale

F. B. Hersome, who plays "Rabbi Samuel" in "Abie's Irish Rose," the side-splitting comedy which comes to the high school for four performances, beginning Monday.

With its excellent cast and production which just recently played an engagement of eleven weeks at the Majestic Theatre, in Buffalo, Anne Nohel, famous successful appealing comedy "Abie's Irish Rose," will be presented by the world famous author-producer for an engagement of three nights and matinee on Wednesday at the high school, commencing Monday, and unless all signs fail, Portsmouth will be another city to be added to the long list of records established by this truly remarkable play, which has been the cause of more discussion than any other play written since the Bard of Avon first started writing.

"Abie's Irish Rose" is not only a play full of good, clean, wholesome comedy, there being a hearty laugh in almost every line, but discloses one of the prettiest little love stories ever told, which in its simplicity is at once winning.

Miss Nichols has written, all told, seventeen plays, eight of nine of which were utilized as starring vehicles for the well known Irish tenor, Mr. Eiske O'Hara.

It was, however, "Abie's Irish Rose" which placed Miss Nichols' name in the hall of fame as having written a play, which has established a precedent never before heard of for long runs in such cities as Los Angeles, San Francisco, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Baltimore, Washington, Chicago and New York, where it is still playing to capacity, Toronto and Montreal.

Seats for all four performances are now on sale at Levi's on Gallia street.

Missing precincts while largely in counties that have given Johnson pluralities do not contain enough votes to materially lessen Schall's advantage, although his plurality may be trimmed several hundred votes.

TAX REDUCTIONS WHILE YOU WAIT--FEATURE OF PROPOSED LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7--"Tax reductions while you wait," is embodied in a new bill which Representative Martin B. Madden of Illinois, chairman of the appropriations committee and one of the most influential members of the House, announced today he proposed to introduce in the next session of Congress.

"The way to save the government's money is to keep the government hard up," said Madden. In furtherance of this idea his bill would provide for a regular check on surpluses appearing in the treasury and an immediate consequent reduction of federal taxes even in midyear.

Madden explained his bill would require the treasury to report surpluses whenever they appeared and would empower the President thereby to reduce taxes by the proportion of the surplus.

PECULIAR DEATH OF KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS OFFICIAL PUZZLES POLICE

WHITEFIELD, N. H., Nov. 7--Unable to explain peculiar circumstances surrounding the death of James Travis, past grand knight of the Knights of Columbus council here, whose body was found in a mill pond here yesterday, the police tonight were awaiting the report of an autopsy held today by the state pathologist, Dr. H. N. Kingsford of Hanover.

Travis disappeared early Wednesday night after he had entered his own dooryard. After daylight his body was found in the mill pond, resting on two logs, 75 feet from the shore, and slightly under the surface of the water which The Davis total stood at 130 and the was about four feet deep at that point.

FARM FEDERATION SUGGESTS OHIO MAN FOR WALLACE'S POST

CHICAGO, Nov. 7--President O. E. Bradford of the American Farm Bureau Federation today recommended to President Coolidge the following to succeed the late Henry O. Wallace as Secretary of Agriculture:

Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois; J. D. Howard, former President of the American Farm Bureau Federation; J. W. Coverdale, former secretary of the Federation; L. J. Tuber, Master of the National Grange; Murray D. Lincoln, Secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, and Dr. Arthur Gilbert, commissioner of agriculture of Massachusetts.

These names, Mr. Bradford explained, were more frequently mentioned in responses from 20 state farm bureaus to President Coolidge's request for suggestions as to men capable of filling the vacancy.

"HONEST JOHN" BURKE, FIGURE IN WALL STREET CRASH, NAMED TO BENCH

SAIGO, N. D., Nov. 7--Honest John" Burke, three times Governor of North Dakota, United States treasurer during the Wilson administration, and a principal in the famous New York bankruptcy case of Kardos and Burke in 1922, when he was rendered virtually penniless, came back today.

Always a heavy favorite with North Dakotans, who, although he is a member of the Democratic party, while the state is so overwhelmingly Republican, elected him three times Governor, "Honest John" as his friends have dubbed him, won a sweeping victory Tuesday in the race for membership on the North Dakota supreme court bench.

Since his return from his unprofitable venture on Wall Street, Burke has practiced law in Fargo.

Rev. Phelps To Discuss "Genuine Holders of the Holy Grail"

Rev. William Horatio Phelps, D. D., pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, will base his sermon next Sunday morning upon an article recently published in the Ladies' Home Journal entitled "Chalice of Antioch," and will speak upon "Genuine Holders of the Holy Grail." Some, after several years of thought, have decided this may be the holy grail itself and many will be instructed in Dr. Phelps' discourse concerning it. It will be remembered that next Tuesday, Armistice Day, will be observed, and the service as a whole will be in conformity with the occasion.

America will be sung and an international postscript written for Armistice Day by the pastor.

Special mention is made of the fact that this service begins promptly at 10:15 o'clock, the time having recently been changed from 10:30 in the interest of the "Stay-to-Church" campaign.

In the evening Dr. Phelps will carry the thought of his morning sermon a little further and combine it with the approach of the Thanksgiving season. The text and title of his talk will be "He Took the Cup and Gave Thanks." At this service, which has become so popular with Second church people themselves, a warm and hearty welcome always awaits strangers and visitors. Come and enjoy a worshipful hour Sunday evening at 7:15 o'clock.

Fire Destroys Truck

A Willys-Knight service truck belonging to the Golden Rule garage, was almost completely destroyed Thursday forenoon by a blaze which started from a short circuit in the wiring system.

Two mechanics were enroute to tow in a disabled car from the Buena Vista pike and they had only proceeded a short distance on the Y road when their service car burst into flames. I. M. Southworth of the Minamix filling station near the School bridge hurried to the scene with a couple of fire extinguishers, but he was unable to suppress the fire in time to save the car, which is almost a total loss to the owner, R. L. Wilson, proprietor of the Golden Rule garage.

Papua, only 400 miles from Australia, is overrun by cannibals.

Premature Old Age Of Women
It is no secret that so many women suffer from ailments peculiar to their sex. Dark circles appear under the eyes, a pale, drawn, haggard expression to the countenance, and the weakness which accompanies such ailments is evidenced by the lagging step, headaches, backache and nervous conditions. Every woman who is afflicted in this way should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which for half a century has been overhauling some of the most stubborn ailments of women. ## Fire Destroys West Side Home

The home of William Shackert, on the Pond Creek road, near the County club, was entirely destroyed by fire shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, together with the contents, entailing a loss estimated at $1,000.

The blaze originated from burning coals falling from a cook stove upon the kitchen floor and the flames had gained considerable headway when discovered by a daughter, who had started the fire in the stove preparatory to getting the evening meal and left the house for a few minutes.

Neighbors and passing motorists joined in forming a bucket brigade to combat the fire but the flames spread so rapidly that they were unable to even check the progress of the fire.

The blaze cut off the only near water supply, a well just adjacent to the house, and fire fighters were compelled to carry water to keep the blaze from destroying a large pile of coal near the house.

All that was saved was a bundle of clothes belonging to one of the children.

Shackert was in Portsmouth at the time, and did not know of the fire until he came "home" to supper, only to find that his home had been swept away by the flames.

No insurance was carried, it was stated.

Hazelbeck will insure you.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Douglas Raynor is found shot through the heart in the early evening on the floor of the sun room of Flower Acres, his Long Island home. Standing over the dead man, pistol in hand, is Malcolm Finley, former sweetheart of Raynor's wife, Nancy. Eva Turner, Raynor's nurse, stands by the light switch. In a moment Nancy appears, white-faced and terrified. Orville Kent, Nancy's brother, comes in from the south side of the room. And then Ezra Goddard, friend of Finley; Miss Mattie, Raynor's sister, and others, enter upon the scene. Detective Dobbins heads the police investigation. An autopsy reveals that Raynor also was being systematically poisoned. A letter from Lionel Raynor, son of Douglas Raynor by first marriage, comes to claim his father's estate. Now Nancy tells Dobbins that she believes Nurse Turner hated Douglas Raynor. "Do you think she shot him?" Nancy asks the detective.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"No, Mrs. Raynor, I've not the slightest reason to think that. But I do think if your story of your drug remedy is a true one—I do think it possible that she was administering the poison pellets."

"My story is true, Mr. Dobbins—please, believe it! I knew my husband was secretly taking drugs—I found that soon it would become an ineradicable habit. Somebody told me of the cure—it was warranted harmless so I tried it on Mr. Raynor. I reasoned that if it didn't cure him, it could do him no harm. And, too—I cannot tell you—I don't want to tell you how unutterably cruel he was to me because of the drug."

"But I thought," Dobbins watched her closely, "I thought morphine made people merry and happy."

"Yes—but it was when he couldn't get the drug that he was so terrible. I had to hide it from him—and then when he couldn't find it, he—he became almost like a maniac—he tortured me until I had to give it to him again."

"You poor woman! I don't wonder you wanted to kill him."

both. Try to remember that your explanations and excuses, so far, have no real weight as evidence in your favor, and for heaven's sake, if you know anything definite or truly prejudicial to any one else, tell it—and help your own cause!"

Dobbins spoke emphatically. "Now," he went on, "what I'm getting at is this. If you have enough real doubt of Miss Turner, say so—and I'll go straight and hunt her down and face her with the question."

"I don't know," and Nan's worried face showed deepest doubt. "It does seem so awful to accuse a poor nurse of crime, with so little to suggest it."

"Maybe I can add a little," and as the sharp tones fell on their ears, Miss Mattie glided into the room.

"I've been listening," she said, seating herself. "I make no bones of doing that in any matter concerning my brother's death. I've heard all you two have said—and I must confess, Nan, I think you're pretty good—I don't believe, now, you poisoned Douglas—I believe your story of the drugs and the cure—you see I know you better than Mr. Dobbins does. I am shocked, of course, to learn that Douglas bunkered after morphine—it's disgraceful—but to my mind, it's a small matter compared with the question of who killed him. Now, I always disliked the Turner woman, and moreover, I always thought there was something between her and Douglas. I mean something that happened before she came here."

"That's what I want to get at!" cried Dobbins, eagerly.

"Come to me, then, said Miss Mattie, calmly. "Mrs. Raynor is young and trusting—she's really interested in the ways of women of the world. I don't say she didn't shoot my brother—she said, 'Lord knows,' and in a moment of desperation—but that's not the point at present. If Nan didn't give Douglas poison—then Eva Turner did. My brother had a lamentable episode in his life about twenty years ago."

"With Eva Turner?" asked Dobbins, quickly.

"Yes, but it was when he couldn't get the drug that he was so terrible. I had to hide it from him—and then when he couldn't find it, he—he became almost like a maniac—he tortured me until I had to give it to him again."

"You poor woman! I don't wonder you wanted to kill him."

THE GIRL'S NAME WAS EFFIE TALCOTT—AND IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN MISS TURNER.

If this was a trap, Nan took no notice of it. She went on, gave him the pellets quite regularly for a time—he not knowing it, of course. I could see no marked improvement in the matter of the drug habit, but I was alarmed at noticing symptoms that seemed to indicate that something was radically wrong. He became slightly anemic, was short of breath, and subject to intense thirst. I spoke of these things to Miss Turner, but she said I imagined them and that he was all right."

"It became more alarmed—yet I didn't like to speak to Doctor Saxton about it."

"Why?"

"I think the principal reason was, I feared he would attribute the conditions to the pellets I had been giving him—and I knew these were harmless—for I had had them analyzed by an expert chemist. So—I really don't know how I came to think of poison, but I did, and I bought a little book telling about poisons and their antidotes. As I read it, I became convinced that Mr. Raynor was regularly taking arsenic into his system. I thought first of suicide—then I began to suspect Miss Turner of knowing something about it."

"And that explains, you think, the whole matter of the arsenic poisoning?"

"Don't you think so?"

"Frankly, I do not. I still think—pardon my brutal plainness, that all this is a fabrication of your own. First, poison pellets were found hidden in a vase in your bedroom. Again, if either the drug, morphine, or the patent medicine you say you were administering had been found at the autopsy, your story might carry weight. But no traces of those substances appear in the report of the operating surgeons. If you suspect Miss Turner, why didn't you accuse her at once?"

"As I told you, Nan spoke with difficulty. 'I didn't—I don't exactly suspect her—I can only say—I don't entirely trust her. I hoped, if I threw away all the morphine and all the curative pellets, it would never be known that my husband indulged in drugs at all. I am sensitive about his reputation and I don't want the matter known. His sister would be most charmed and mortified if she knew of it.'

"Well, Mrs. Raynor, I can't think this is a time for such punctilious consideration of Miss Raynor's feelings, or even of your husband's weakness. Try to remember that you are under grave suspicion yourself, of having killed your husband, by poison, or by a shot, or

"That I don't know. But the girl's name was Effie Talcott—and it might have been Miss Turner, under a different name."

Miss Mattie settled herself in her chair, almost as if prepared to enjoy the recital.

"It was when my brother was perhaps forty years old. He was a widower, or Effie Talcott was a chorus girl, and Douglas fell madly in love with her. He had no idea of marrying her, but he lavished every attention on her."

"Well, one night they were driving out somewhere after the theatre, and there was a motor accident. Miss Talcott's leg was broken and she went to the hospital. She was there nearly a year, and when she came out she did not exactly limp, but she could never dance again. Of course, this ended her stage career, and she turned to my brother for support."

"This he refused, and she brought a breach of promise suit against him. It was settled out of court, but the girl was not at all satisfied with the arrangements made for her, and she vowed she'd get even with Douglas sooner or later. My brother only laughed at this. But I heard that during her stay in the hospital she had developed an interest in nursing and had an aptitude for it. That is all I know—but, if you put two and two together—"

"The Talcott girl would be about forty now, and if she has been a nurse for years, she may be a dietitian as well as any other specialist."

In consequence of this story of Mattie Raynor's, Detective Dobbins set off at once for New York City, to interview the nurse at the address she had left behind her.

He was greeted in a non-committal fashion by a middle-aged woman curiously groomed and infernally attired. "Sit down," she said. "What's it about?"

"About Miss Turner," Dobbins replied. "Where is she?"

"Out on a case—I don't know where, exactly."

"Think you can find the address, somehow, can't you?"

"Maybe, when I know what you want her for. Is it a case?"

"Yes; it's a case," and Dobbins smiled inwardly.

"Oh, well, then, I'll give you the address."

"Look here, I want you to tell me something about her about her early life. I'm—I'm a reporter—I'm getting statistics about the early life of nurses, and how they came to take up their profession."

Present Hospital To Public

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., NOV. 7.—St. Mary's, Huntington's newest hospital, was presented to the public yesterday when Rt. Rev. John J. Swint, Bishop of the Catholic diocese of Wheeling, blessed the building for the work to which it is now dedicated.

St. Mary's is located at First avenue and Twenty-ninth street, in the remodeled buildings which were formerly the home of St. Edward's Preparatory College. It has accommodations for 75 patients, together with modern provisions for pathological and surgical examination and treatment. It is in charge of a group of Pallatine Sisters.

Thief Fails To Steal Car of Judge Sprague

Judge William R. Sprague and the police are looking for the bold thief who attempted to steal the Judge's Cadillac touring car from the garage in the rear of his home on Second street.

The intruder was frightened away by Kenyon Johnson, who lives next door to the Sprague home, when he arrived home about the midnight hour. The intruder did not leave empty-handed, however, as an investigation disclosed he took four gallons of oil from a barrel in the garage and a flash light from the machine, which was doubly locked.

Cooking School Close s; Is a Big Success

The Morning Sun Cooking School, which Dr. R. A. Shives has conducted for the last four days at 846 Gallia street, closed this afternoon with another capacity audience to study the question of "Salads and Salad Dressings."

This is Dr. Shives' second school in Portsmouth, the first being the one he held at Horethow's last spring. The schools last spring and this fall have been so successful that plans are under way to make the Morning Sun School an annual affair, held in a larger auditorium so that more women may be accommodated.

Have you found permanent relief from that terrible disease—constipation? The woman whose letter follows discovered—as thousands have discovered—that Kellogg's Bran succeeds when all else fails. This is because Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be so effective. This is what she wrote:

"Gentlemen: I am so wonderfully happy over my discovery. I feel I must tell the world about it. For years I have been ill continually from constipation, always resorting to pills or the like, never having any permanent relief until I heard of your Bran.

Every morning I take two table-spoonsful before my breakfast—and since the latter part of August I must admit have not experienced one sick spell which I have had for years. I have started my little girl of four years on your Bran, and already I have noticed a change in her. I thank you."

Name and address furnished on request. Write the Kellogg Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is guaranteed to relieve permanently the most chronic cases of constipation. Eat at least two table-spoonsful daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Money returned if not effective.

Notice the wonderful nut-like flavor. This flavor is delicious—so different from ordinary, unpalatable bran. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, made in Battle Creek, is served by America's leading hotels and clubs. Demand Kellogg's Bran. It will bring back your health. Start eating it today. MOTOR CAR CRASHES INTO BUGGY; 2 DEAD
BRYAN, O., Nov. 7.—Ward Smith, 30, died today from injuries suffered when his buggy was struck by an automobile at Farmer last night, bringing the fatalities as a result of the accident to two. Smith's son, Jackie, six months old, died shortly after the accident. The automobile which crashed into the buggy in which Mr. and Mrs. Smith and the baby were riding, was found abandoned two miles south of Farmer.

Poses of residents and bloodhounds from Bryan were unsuccessful in finding any trace of the two men who were occupants of the machine.

FORD'S ROAD WILL TRY NEW VULCANIZED FUEL ENGINES
NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Henry Ford's railroad, the Detroit, Toledo & Trenton, today placed an order for a powerful fuel burning locomotive which will burn the coke left after the coal has been treated and all by-products recovered, it was learned here today.

The engine, which will be the largest freight locomotive on the road, will be manufactured by the Internal Combustion Corporation. It will be able to operate over the entire road without stops for re-fueling.

SNOWFALL HALTS FINAL COUNT IN NORTH DAKOTA
FARGO, N. D., Nov. 7.—This year, as in 1923, election returns came in slowly from the counties of western North Dakota. A heavy snowfall which covered the western part of the state from two to eight inches the day after election, proves an added deterrent to speedy gathering of the vote.

THREE DIE OF POISONING
CHESTER, Pa., Nov. 7.—The bodies of three men believed to have died from gas poisoning were found today in an apartment. The men were said to have been dead 12 hours. Gas was flowing from three open pits under parts of food on a stove.

The world's longest tunnel—a bore 5 miles long through the rock of the Catskill Mountains in New York state—was made entirely by electric power.

CORONER RENDERS ACCIDENTAL VERDICT IN LONG RUN SHOOTING; FAMILY IS DESTITUTE

The conservatives will dare to be bold and the radicals will not have the same aggressiveness as heretofore. The result of the election will be a narrow squeak that he will be a sad and wiser man when he enters the Republican cloakroom. In Minnesota the downfall of Magnus Johnson is significant. There a regular Republican was nominated, who was by no means as radical as Johnson, but who has been identified with the Progressive group. It was a case of fighting fire with fire and though one wing of the Republican organization didn't like the nomination of Thomas D. Schall, they did admit that Schall was a safer and more reasonable man to represent Republican voters than was Magnus Johnson. Schall is very friendly to the railway brotherhoods and union labor and can be expected to support the labor side of legislative issues. But, at that, the Republicans themselves put him up and while he won with the very support which ordinarily would go to a La Follette type of senator he was given the wholehearted vote of the regular Republicans. Schall like others elected this time will not be so much inclined to the radical or insurgent side as to lose the support of the regular Republicans in his state.

Men like Schall will follow President Coolidge on measures that are of national benefit but Mr. Coolidge will find Schall as well as others inclined to join with the Democrats whenever any measure sectional in character is proposed. Unless the administration, for instance, takes the initiative in a constructive program for agriculture, these western senators will be found reviving the farm bloc again.

Congress Should Know President's Views.

Mr. Coolidge has not tried to drive congress. The development of new leaders in both houses of congress may make that unnecessary but it is no reflection on the President's careful policy of the past to say that Congress will ask him more and more for guidance especially in advance of the passage of legislation. For while technically speaking the executive and legislative are two separate branches of the government, they get along most effectively when the leader of the party in the White House speaks his mind before his colleagues in the Senate and House commit themselves to a course of action. There is little doubt that if Mr. Coolidge had sent a message threatening to veto the soldier bonus bill that it might have had harder sledding than it had when the measure came up for re-passage. The President also acted too late to prevent senators from lining up on the Japanese issue.

"We would stultify ourselves," said a New England senator the other day, "if we reversed our position after a veto message came to us. What we need is enlightenment ahead of time, before we have committed ourselves."

Probably no body realizes this particular phase of executive leadership more keenly now than the President himself. The effect of the election on Calvin Coolidge may not be immediately apparent but the development of a stronger executive may be expected.

Forest Fire Rages

Considerable damage was done yesterday evening, by fires on the hills back of Louisville, Ky., opposite Wheelersburg.

Fire swept timberland and underbrush on the farm of Mrs. Mary Merrill, and it was several hours before the blaze could be extinguished. The flames and smoke could be seen for several miles up and down the river.

Pupils Stage Parade

Celebrating the victory of the three mill levy and bond issues at the election last Tuesday, was celebrated at Navroo yesterday, by the pupils and teachers of the school, who staged a parade in the afternoon.

There were three hundred and fifty boys and girls in the parade, through the streets of the village of Navroo, led by their teachers, Mrs. Amy Mitchell, Mrs. Tessie Nans, Mrs. Libby Goetz and the Misses Eunice and Nell Smith.

Investigation of the accidental shooting to death early Thursday afternoon of Charles Neely, four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Neely of Long Run, by his other brother, Eddie, nine years old, disclosed the fact that the mother had taken the shot-gun and gone hunting and on the return trip had allowed the eldest son to carry the loaded gun. The mother, accompanied by the two children, had been out on the hills a short time in search of rabbits.

There had been only one shell for the gun at the house and this was to have been used in the killing of a rabbit by the mother. The hunt proved unsuccessful and the mother and sons started back to the house. They had reached a point about 150 feet from the rear part of the home when the fatal shooting occurred. The boy carrying the gun was walking down the path in front of his mother and brother. He carried it under his arm, with the barrel pointing to the rear. The mother and young son were only about ten feet back of the gun when it was discharged. The mother had a narrow escape from being wounded as she was right beside her youngest son when he reloaded the full charge of the gun in his chest. Blood vessels were severed near the heart and death came almost instantly.

Coroner Virgil Fowler and Special Investigator E. E. Rieky from the county prosecuting attorney's office visited the home late yesterday afternoon and found the family in destitute circumstances. The body was turned over to Undertaker Baehler and ordered prepared for county burial. Coroner Fowler rendered a verdict of accidental death.

The father was some distance away from home shucking corn when his young son was killed. Funeral and burial services will be held Saturday.

Ballinger and Blackburn Will Put Up a Sizzling Battle

One bout on the Blair-Dando program next Monday evening and which should be a thriller is the Speedy Ballinger and Jack Blackburn match. Both of these colored boxers have appeared once before in a Portsmouth ring and both scored knockouts in the first round. Ballinger is a local product while Blackburn hails from Huntington.

Speedy Ballinger made his debut here last summer when he knocked out Dutch White in twenty seconds at the Winter Garden. Blackburn knocked out Young Farmer of Dayton here last winter in Brushhart hall. Both boys apparently possess a powerful wallop and it is likely that the bout will terminate before the last round arrives.

Blair and Dando will finish their training Saturday with the exception of light road work Sunday morning. Blair weighed 146 on the Smoke House scales Thursday evening so with "drying out" on the day of the bout he could easily make 140. There will be less than five pounds difference in the weights when the boys step into the ring.

Kid Hickman and Red Wiles, who are working the semi-final will weigh 115 pounds, Johnny Lucas and Charles Wells around 122 while Jack Crawford and Jacy Hughes will go around 135 pounds. The card is well balanced and the fans will see lots of action.

Buck Trounced
ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 7.—Jack Roddick of Canada last night knocked out Soldier Buck of Louisville, Ky., here in the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout. Both are light-heavyweights. Buck was out for about five minutes.

"Condition remains grave. Has shown short periods of consciousness, and has taken nourishment for the first time."

Visit Ends Disastrously for Local Boy; Hit By Machine

Less than an hour after Arnold Holley, 11 year old son of Samuel Holley of Tenth and Chillicothe streets arrived in Ironton for a visit with relatives, he had figured in a bicycle-automobile accident and was injured so badly that he had to be taken to Marting hospital in that city.

Mr. Holley and son left Portsmouth for Ironton shortly after the noon hour Thursday. The bicycle the lad was riding and a machine driven by Mrs. Chester Scowden of Ironton collided at Fifth and Vesuvius streets, Ironton, about two o'clock Thursday afternoon. The boy sustained two broken bones in his right forearm, and serious bruises and lacerations about the head.

According to Mrs. Scowden, who was driving a Ford car, the accident occurred when she attempted to turn out Vesuvius street from the western side of the Fifth street intersection. A car was parked at the curb, near the corner, and in attempting to round this she was forced into the middle of the street. The Holley youth was approaching Fifth street from Fourth on Vesuvius, and Mrs. Scowden says he seemed to lose control as he veered directly into her car. The front wheel of the bike was crushed and the boy was thrown to the street. Miss Gertrude Urue of Fifth and Vesuvius streets was first on the scene and she carried the unconscious youth into her home. Dr. Burton was called and after an examination he ordered him removed to Marting hospital. Early last evening he was taken from the hospital to the home of relatives in Ironton. Young Holley and his father live with the latter's brother, Frank Holley, of Portsmouth, but both came to Ironton Thursday to visit at the home of John Hall in West Ironton. It was some time before the father could be located, as the injured boy was unable to speak coherently for hours.

BIRTHS

AUTO GOES INTO DITCH; FIVE HURT; ONE SERIOUSLY

Big Cadillac Sideswipes Ford Near Wheelersburg

A man giving the name of John Combs, and Ashland, Ky., as his residence, was seriously injured, and four others, including two young women, escaped with minor bruises, when a big Cadillac touring car being used as a taxi between Huntington, W. Va., and this city, went into a ditch alongside the road a half mile beyond "Wizard Oil" bridge, over Pine creek, about one-thirty Friday afternoon. Combs, who has only one arm, was hurled out of the machine and in addition to numerous cuts and bruises, was seriously crushed. He was taken to Mercy hospital.

Those in the accident were:
John Combs, Ashland, possible fractured skull, three ribs fractured, injured about the back.

Luther Cooper, Chicago, minor bruises.

Eileen Bowyer, 110 West Third street, Huntington, cut under left eye and other minor hurts.

Margaret Mars, 1425 Fourth street, Huntington, lip cut and minor bruises.

Homer Stowers, 807 Bertha avenue, Portsmouth, driver of the taxi, minor bruises.

According to the story told by Stowers and the two young women in the car, the three started from Huntington this morning to come to Portsmouth. Stowers was the driver of the taxi, which he said is owned by the J. B. Lawson Taxi company of Huntington. At Ashland, Stowers says, he picked up two other passengers, Combs and Cooper.

Just beyond where the accident happened there is a refreshment stand on the side of the road next to the river. John Lory, of Madison, W. Va., enroute from Madison to Cincinnati in a Ford coupe, had stopped at the stand, and pulled out into the road just ahead of the taxi, which was traveling at a pretty good rate of speed. Lory says he looked behind, but thought the oncoming machine, if traveling at a legal rate of speed, had plenty of time in which to stop. Stowers, driver of the taxi, says Lory did not give him enough time to stop, and he therefore had to pull over to the right and try to pass on that side. The Cadillac sideswiped the Ford and then the big machine went into the ditch and turned over.

First aid was given to Combs at the scene of the accident and he was then brought to Mercy hospital in the Windel ambulance where he was attended by Drs. K. D. Reichelderfer and T. G. McCordick.

Two wheels of the Cadillac were smashed, the top was completely demolished, hood crumpled, running board on right side and three fenders crumpled, windshield shattered, and the body dented. The Ford was not badly damaged and was driven by Lory to the Stewart Garage at Sciotoville for repairs.

Sentence Suspended
Clarence Leclerc, 20 years old, was fined $100 and sentenced to jail for three months in Municipal court, Friday, when he pleaded guilty to driving an automobile without the owner's consent. The sentence was later suspended on Leclerc's promise to go to work and on the express condition that he leave his father's automobile alone in the future.

The complaint was filed by the defendant's stepmother, Mrs. Anna Leclerc, 1112 City street, who told the court that her stepson would not work and was in the habit of taking her automobile whenever he pleased and without her consent. She said the first time he had the car it figured in a collision and was badly damaged.

Award Contract To Enlarge U. S. Laundry

C. H. Krauser of the United States revamped and the new addition built 3500 square feet of additional floor space.

Laundry Company announced Friday that the contract for the addition to the laundry and the rebuilding of the present structure had been awarded to Foreman and Putnam of Marietta who have already put a force of men to work excavating for the foundation for the addition to be built on the empty lot on the east of the present structure. Architect Floyd Glass of Columbus prepared the plans for the building. They call for the installation of a steel and plate glass front for the entire building on Fourth street, a frontage of 64 feet. The present structure will be back from Fourth street.

The general contractors although from out of town will employ mostly local men. Material is arriving daily for the new building. A building permit has been taken out for a $15,000 improvement but with machinery installed and changes made in the present structure the expenditure will be considerably higher than this figure. The improvements are to be made without halting work in the laundry and dry cleaning department. When the new addition is completed the laundry firm will have

COLUMBUS GAS SUPPLY TO BE TURNED OFF AT MIDNIGHT MONDAY, NOV. 10

COLUMBUS, O., November 7.—(By the Associated Press)—B. Denning, president of the Federal Gas and Fuel Company, in an official statement issued this afternoon to Mayor James J. Thomas and members of the city council declared that the company would discontinue its supply of natural gas to Columbus consumers at midnight Monday, November 10, and that it will reclaim its plant and appliances within a reasonable time thereafter. The gas company will lose money if it attempts to operate under the 40 cent rate which was approved overwhelmingly by the people at Tuesday's election, the announcement said. "The foregoing notice is absolute and final, save and except only that the city council and other city officers, if necessary by appropriate action, make it possible for the company to give the city and the inhabitants thereof using natural gas a longer time notice—say 30 days—without having its property confiscated or its right prejudiced, the net rate for the gas delivered to be 57 1-2 cents per 1,000 cubic feet" the text of part of Mr. Denning's statement said.

The gas question has been before the city council here for a number of months and council has engaged in many controversies with representatives of the gas company in an effort to determine upon a new gas rate. Council has said it will not sanction anything above a forty cent rate per 1,000 cubic feet and the gas company says it cannot make fair returns upon its investment unless it obtains 57 1-2 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

"Remember," the man was saying, "We always planned to do it just this way."

Even the word had power to terrify her.

"FARE, please! Fare, please! Lady—FARE!" Out of a grayish mist of her own imaginings Mimi Wood came back to the familiar plaint at her elbow.

She murmured a guilty regret. The bus-conductor nearly smiled. He passed her, engulfing her time in his passing.

Mimi settled back into her seat, back into a vapor of gloom, with Fifth Avenue, plumed and battlemented against a daffodil sunset, unrolling itself before her.

Mimi was remembering that when she had left the apartment—that morning—she had intended to be back by five, in order to have her husband's dinner smoking upon the plate when his key turned in the lock.

It was now much nearer six than five, and Kirk's dinner, what there was of it, yet reposed in the icebox. Yesterday's roast to be re-vamped. Into a stew. Flamed pearls for salad. Cold potatoes for frying.

Kirk was inextricably involved in Mimi's mind, most days, with things like that—Kirk, who only three years before had stood for all a sudden in life of beauty and delight.

Kirk, who had whispered to her before the altar, "My golden girl—here's a golden ring for you!" Kirk, who now snapped at her crossly between bits of his insufficiently buttered toast, "Gosh, it isn't much to ask of a woman—a decent cup of coffee in the morning, before a man gets off to work!"

Mimi had been thrilled to the core three years ago at the thought of an apartment of her own—her own and Kirk's. But somehow the man with whom she was now living in that apartment wasn't the man who had taken her there one heavenly night in October—and kissed her in every room of it by way of presenting the keys of the city.

She wondered sometimes if Kirk's chief—the head of the firm of architects with whom he worked—found him as changed as she did. Probably not. Kirk had had a raise each year. Probably his work went on exactly the same. It was only at home, very likely, that he was different.

If any one had told Mimi, three years before, that the idle life which she and Kirk called love—the exquisite, palpant, glowing dream in which they had come together and sworn eternal faith—if any one had told her that it could degenerate into the bloodless warfare of her present existence—Mimi would have laughed.

She laughed now, in a way, sitting up on top of the bus, watching the traffic stream either side of the traffic towers. That is, her mouth twitched, but her eyes were stormy.

She had been away from the apartment all day—who wouldn't, after that morning's scene!

Kirk had been insufferable, sarcastic over trifles, caustic because the top of the dressing table had a bit of powder on it. Women, he had suggested, didn't know the meaning of order, system, ordinary decent tidiness. He hadn't looked to see that the dresser drawers were in a state of meticulous neatness. Mimi had spent half the day before arranging them. It hadn't left her time to clean the top of the darned thing. She didn't explain—naturally. She wasn't going to crawl for any bad-tempered, short-sighted idiot!

So she flung herself out of the place before eleven, in her old blue tweed frock, in a horrid old last year's hat, without even stopping to cry. Had lunched downtown in a fine cold fury of loneliness, gone to a silly, sloopy movie, still alone, suffered every wail of the overcast violin, like a touch on a raw nerve—and here she was going home again—if you liked to call it that!—no happier, no calmer, no more reconciled than when she had slammed the door of the living room behind her that morning.

She knew how it would be. Kirk would come in tired and grouchy. Mimi wouldn't be ready. Or she wouldn't have anything he liked. She'd say something caustic. He'd retort with a nervous sneer. Marriage—was that what people made of it? And there were fools who didn't believe in divorce!

Divorce—a blind alarm fluttered in Mimi's breast, as if some one had shown her the steel-blue eye of a gun or the steel-gray streak of a knife.

Lovers Three Years Ago—Strangers Now—Whose Fault?

"Keep your fingers crossed—darling!"

Mimi rang for the next corner, her own, and climbed down with a hot, queer feeling behind her eyelids. She hated to leave the man and the girl. She wanted to go on and see where his apartment would be. On Riverside? And would the gray girl find roses there waiting for her—bunches of them? There had been roses waiting for Mimi, the night Kirk had taken her home.

All at once Mimi quickened her steps to a little, reckless run. The watch on her wrist showed a quarter of six. Kirk rarely came home half-after six, more often a quarter of seven. He had been working very hard. He was more apt to be late.

The flower shop at the corner had roses in the window, tea roses, extravagantly frail. Mimi, for all her haste, stopped long enough to buy a daisy handful with a lacy front or so of fern, then fled homeward through the sunset.

Arrived once more at her own dressing table—her own powder-smear, beloved dressing table—she cast off her hat and gloves, ran a comb through her soft brown hair so that it fell in shining waves above her ears—swept a powder puff over cheeks and chin.

She wanted to change her gown—the old blue tweed needed badly a fresh frill at the neck—but there wasn't time.

She flung herself out of the bedroom and charged upon ice box and stove like a small, wistful fury.

Stew—of all the nights in the world! Nothing but stew with which to convey to Kirk that she was sorry she had been late! That she knew her temper had got the best of her, that in her heart she loved him truly, that she was going to be good, that she wanted him back again—wanted him dreadfully. Still, when stew was all one had.

Mushrooms came mercifully to light in a forgotten tin behind the bread box. Kirk liked mushrooms. And mayonnaise masked the tinned pears.

There wasn't any lettuce. Mimi said fiercely to herself that it was had been the woman Kirk thought her when he married her, there would have been lettuce, crisp and cool, in a wet napkin upon the ice.

She did all that was humanly possible, with the cold potatoes, by way of a bit of cheese and a heaven-sent dab of white sauce discovered in coy retreat behind a plate of delicatessen ham.

She set the table with reckless haste—a fresh cloth, prettied—the roses in a low shining bowl of black glass—two plates, two knives, two forks, two spoons—

Mimi wondered—with a suddenly uneven heart beat she wondered—if Mac and the gray girl were getting supper together now, in that apartment of his in which they were going to wait—together—until the day of their belated honeymoon should arrive. Only three years ago Mimi and Kirk.

Mimi choked back a sob. What did the gray girl have that Mimi hadn't had—to begin with? What was Mac that Kirk hadn't been—three years ago?

Kirk—when he didn't ruin his keen black eyes with a scowl—his beautiful, sensitive mouth with a sneer—was better-looking, oh, by far! than Mac.

She had thought to herself more than once in those first mad days, "Romeo must have been like this!" That was how she had thought of him then. He had had a way of smiling at her, worshipping—adoringly tender.

No one had meant to be faithfuller than Mimi. No one had ever sworn to be truer than Kirk.

A quarter to seven. He was going to be late, as she had hoped. For once she wanted him to be late. She wanted time to have the table perfect, his coffee just strong enough. Coffee! She hadn't made the coffee!

At the back of Mimi's mind an aching thought persisted: "It's me! It's my own fault that we've got away from everything like this. I haven't tried hard enough. He's come home tired and nervous and edgy from working—for me—and I've been cross with him. I haven't held up my end of the line. If we've strayed out of the lovely place we were in, it's mine my fault than anybody's. But oh, I'd give my soul to get back! To have Kirk look at me the way the man on the bus looked — at the girl in gray!" He used to. Kirk used to!

He had a lovely smile. Funny—T'm talking as if he were dead! — Well—he might as well be. I might as well be, too, if we don't mean any more to each other than we did this morning. Just a man and a woman, tied together, snapping and snarling—and we used to believe—

She set her soft mouth hard to stop its trembling. She measured coffee into the top of the pot and water into the bottom of it. She lit another burner and set the pot above it.

Then she lifted the lid from the bubbling stew and leaned to stir it. Steam rose in an airy mist. Not for nothing had Mimi ransacked her cupboard; it was a good steam, a tantalizing steam.

She thought, absurdly relieved. "It's going to be all right. Kirk'll like it! I'll just about have time to powder my nose now, before he comes in."

She turned and the lid clattered from the stew pot to the floor, by which, all at once, she was aware of badly shaking hands.

"I'm like somebody groping for something she's lost—feeling around in the dark—trying to get love back with mushrooms in a stew. I don't care! There must be a way."

Lid retrieved, she stirred and peered into the pot once more, murmured like an enchantress above a love-philix. But all she said was, surprisingly—"God—you know I've lost him. Give him back to me—please!"

Steps in the living room, steps passing the table with its unaccustomed grace of roses in a black glass bowl. Kirk's voice from the kitchen doorway, a rather tired voice with a vague touch of irritation.

"Gosh, it's hot in here! Dinner not ready yet?"

Mimi faced him swiftly, crimsoned to her hair; stifled a sharp retort that in that moment's surprise almost winged its way to freedom. "Hello," she said at last. "I didn't hear you come in. Go on and sit down. I'll have it on the table in half a second."

"About seven, now!" Kirk muttered.

He cast a dark, dissatisfied glance about the kitchen and turned away. A tall, slim, almost romantic-looking young man, Kirk, with a wickedly irresistible line between his level, black brows, a dogged set to the

"I think you told me only yesterday you never wanted to hear that word again."

"Oh, Kirk!" said Mimi unhappily. But it was true. She had told him just that. He had been late getting off in the morning. His breakfast hadn't been ready on time. He had complained that he was always the last man to get down to work, and she had told him that she was sick of hearing how late he was—that he stayed there, long enough after hours to make up for it—and that she never wanted to hear the word "office" again.

Kirk added unexpectedly: "Hard enough! I suppose you put in a nerve-racking afternoon at a movie."

It was the sort of thing they customarily indulged in, the kind of half-sparling, half-nudging that had come to be second nature with them. Mimi felt despair rise in her soul like a black wave. Were they really so far out of each other's reach that this was all their means of communication?

Sitting with both elbows on the table, chin in hands, eyes fixed on the neglected sweetness of her tea-roses, Mimi felt to dreaming of the room in which Mac and the gray girl would now be eating their first dinner alone.

A big room most likely, and most likely overlooking the drive, with a view of the river, dark and misty.

"I think you told me only yesterday you never wanted to hear that word again."

"Oh, Kirk!" said Mimi unhappily. But it was true. She had told him just that. He had been late getting off in the morning. His breakfast hadn't been ready on time. He had complained that he was always the last man to get down to work, and she had told him that she was sick of hearing how late he was—that he stayed there, long enough after hours to make up for it—and that she never wanted to hear the word "office" again.

Kirk added unexpectedly: "Hard enough! I suppose you put in a nerve-racking afternoon at a movie."

"No sugar in the house?" asked Kirk, at this point, with strained politeness.

She fetched the sugar.

"Kirk," she offered with a conciliating hand on his shoulder, as she passed him—"Kirk, wasn't the stew rather good tonight?"

"Good enough," said Kirk briefly. It took all Mimi had of control not to tell him, in that thwarted, affronted moment, that she had done forever with cooking stews or anything else for his table.

"Selfish," she stormed to herself, "selfish and stupid and hard as nails. He doesn't see anything that I'm trying to tell him. He doesn't care any more. It's no good, my humming for nothing. I made a hideous mistake when I married him, and that's all there is to it!"

But she didn't say it aloud. Something doggedly childishly hopeful held her back. She told him instead: "Go on in the living room and sit down. I'll do the dishes."

To a speech like that from the gray girl, Mac would undoubtedly have replied with laconic tenderness: "You will not! I'll wash, and you wipe." Or better yet, "Sit down your-self, young lady, and see how it's done!"

Kirk merely paused in the doorway to answer usually. "All right, I've got a headache." Then, dispassionately, still bearing the newspaper and feeling for his cigarette case.

Mimi turned the faucet on the pile of plates in the sink with coldly vicious little fingers. She threw all that remained of the stew into the discard—not a great deal at that; Kirk had eaten where he had not peered above the scattered remnants of potato and pear she muttered grimly:

"Well, call it a day! I'm through!"

Still, she left the tiny kitchen cleaner than usual. There was a vague relief in pouring streams of boiling water upon the debris of her mis-prized dinner, a rebellious satisfaction in creating horrid dissensions with pots and lids.

If all of life were only so simple! If boiling water were all that one needed to erase the work of the Moving Finger! If hanging pots did have Kirk, at first. We were crazy-happy. We were like a couple of kids. To have him—and lose him—like this! To lose all the love by side of him and be left with a stranger on my hands—a stranger who doesn't even like me—as I don't even . . .

But she couldn't pretend she didn't ever like the stranger. She couldn't make herself say it, even to herself. Desolation overwhelmed her at the realization of how much she did like him, in spite of everything.

She glanced back over her shoulder at Kirk. He had dropped the paper once more. He was lighting a fresh cigarette. He was smoking too much, always a sign of overstrain with him.

Mimi said, before she could stop herself: "I thought you were going to cut out smoking for a while."

"Did you?" said Kirk. Hopeless! Worse than hopeless! She couldn't make him hear her across the gulf. His eyes rested on her without seeing her.

Well, Mimi had made her little effort. She had told him her little olive-branch! Kirk hadn't so much as been aware of it. He hadn't recognized her flag of truce. Hadn't cared enough to recognize it.

Blind and deaf and cold he was! Let him go his own way and she'd go hers. Love was dead between them. There wasn't a chance in the world of getting back the dream.

Mac and the gray girl might have better luck. Across yellow-windowed houses, across dark, roaring streets, to that imagined room overlooking the lights on the river, Mimi sent her sardonic fancies.

"I hope you'll be happy—while it lasts!"

She turned away from the window. She took a look from a little table and tucked it under one arm.

In the doorway leading to the bedroom she stopped, because Kirk called her name—suddenly.

"Mimi—where are you going?"

"I'm going to bed."

"What for? It's only 8 o'clock."

She looked at him in silence—a small, listless figure—wearily, resentfully conscious in that moment of her rumpled frock, her rumpled hair, her shilly elbows, her shabby skirt, that needed pressing. Perhaps, after all, what a man wanted was a pretentious, properly cared for. The gray girl—exquisite as a flower, just lifted out of a florist's box. No wonder Mac's eyes had been ardent and deep. If Mimi had done her hair again and changed into the rose crepe, instead of dashing out to spend her soul upon that wretched stew . . .

In silence, oddly awkward, Kirk looked back at her.

He saw her now. Oh, yes, beyond question he saw her! He looked at her as if he were feeling about in his mind for something he wanted to say to her. If it were something sarcastic and critical about her hair or her clothes, Mimi felt she could not stand it. There were tears behind her eyelids. Tears of defeat.

Mimi came slowly back. She stood beside the settee, looking down at him without a word.

"Sorry I was cross, honey."

The old told. She hadn't heard it in months. It had been months since Kirk had apologized for being cross to her—or she to him!

She murmured an unintelligible reply. To herself she was praying fiercely, over and over again.

"Don't cry. You know how he hates it. Don't cry."

"Come home with a rotten headache," Kirk reached up one hand, and Mimi let him have hers to hold—still wordless. "Been working too long, I guess. I hadn't told you—I was afraid I couldn't put it over—Belton, the fellow in charge of the office, is resigning, going to California to live. Chance for me to step into his shoes. I'm almost certain of it now, from something the Old Man said to me today. Didn't mean to tell you till I had it clinched but—"

"But what?" asked Mimi unsteadily.

He drew her fingers across his cheek with a gesture her heart remembered; grinned, half shamefaced.

"Oh—I had sort of a lonesome streak tonight."

Lonesome, Kirk! For whom? Another fear to face.

"For you," said Kirk simply. "I used to tell you everything. Don't you know I did? All the stuff about the office and all that—until I got to thinking you didn't care for it. Mimi—you didn't mean what you said the other day—about never wanting to hear—"

Mimi put her two hands across his lips.

"I've been an ill-tempered little beast," she said passionately, "and a blind little fool—and you shall have your breakfast on time if I have to stay up all night to get it!"

Kirk pulled her down beside him and cuddled her head on his shoulder.

"That was a darned good stew," he admitted with sporting generosity. Mimi felt his lips on her hair and drew a long, relaxing sigh.

She knew now that the fog which shut her in, had shut him in, too. He had been looking for her, as she for him. One had merely to go on calling and seeking till it lifted. A matter of faith—and a gallant heart!

"There were mushrooms in the stew," she said peacefully, with her cheek on Kirk's lapel.

"If I knew it was different, somehow," he assured her proudly. Mimi wisely said nothing of the tear.

He kissed her hair again and the end of one eyebrow tipped up her face and kissed her on the mouth with a kind of hungry tenderness.

"Got on a new dress tonight, haven't you?" he whispered. "Looks like a million!"

corners of his nervously handsome mouth.

When Mimi brought in a dish and set it down on the table before him, he shifted the evening paper in which he was already deeply absorbed, glanced down, and observed with weary resignation.

"Stew again?"

"Oh, but this is a good one, Kirk!" said Mimi coaxingly.

He assured her from behind his newspaper. "I know—they all are."

Mimi set her teeth to keep back the barred reply with which habit supplied her. She said almost pleadingly: "I've got potatoes—and a salad—"

INJURIES FORCE CHANGES IN OHIO STATE LINEUP FOR INDIANA GAME SATURDAY

Buckeyes, Illini and Wolverines Meet Tomorrow in Annual Triangular Run

COLUMBUS, Ohio, November 7.—Ohio State, resuming its Big Ten campaign, will present a revamped battle front in tomorrow's game, with Indiana here in the Stadium. Several changes have been made necessary in the Buckeye lineup because of injuries. The most outstanding shift over a week ago is in the left side of the line where Nichols, who sustained a partial fracture of the leg in the Wooster game, will be missing at his accustomed place at tackle.

Just who will replace Nichols probably will not be determined until the last minute. Mackey, who has been used as a reserve tackle on the outside of the line, and Harrison, another first-string reserve, have been groomed all week for the place. Tim McCarthy, who started the season as a tackle, also is a possibility. All three are without varsity experience prior to this fall.

It is practically certain on the eve of the Indiana game, too, that the Ohio State backfield will be different from that which started a week ago against Wooster. Wendler at the one-halfback position and Cameron at quarterback, seem to be the only certainties. Varsity coaches are hoping that Marty Karow, who started the season at fullback like a whirlwind, and Otto Klee, halfback, will be sufficiently recovered from recent injuries to permit them to get into the line-up.

Karow was hurt in the Iowa and Wesleyan contests and didn't get into the Wooster game at all and was in the Chicago fray for only a few minutes. Klee, who started against Wesleyan, Iowa and Chicago, played about a minute against Wooster. Either or both would strengthen the Buckeyes offensively as well as defensively. Keith DeVoe, last year's regular fullback, who sustained a twisted knee in the Chicago game, probably will not be available tomorrow. Clark, the other fullback, is not in the best of shape, either.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER

PORTSMOUTH seems in a fair way to adopt the zoning system.

The zoning system, as now developed, is much more expansive than the term implied in the olden days. It goes much further than a mere regulation aimed to prevent the erection of fire-traps in the business districts. More strictly it regulates what sort of a structure shall go up in the traffic parts and aims to make construction harmonious and productive in beautifying appearance.

As now interpreted building operations in the residential sections would be as rigidly sustained as in the business sections and they would be guarded against intrusion by trade or service structures that would in anywise detract from their desirability or general character as dwelling places. Under its rigid enforcement the corner grocery and the oil station, perched among the handsomest homes would disappear, or at least none further appear, as it is not likely the law would carry to the extent of eliminating that which already exists.

It is a pity that Portsmouth and every other town of considerable size, or prospect for the future, did not adopt some such regulations long ago. In the rush and eagerness of growth anything like a harmonious system has been unheeded and beauty in development was never so much as dreamed of.

A MATTER OF ECONOMICS

D. LEE M. FRANKEL, vice-president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, is convinced that milk is the most important and wholesome article of single foods. None other contains so much lime, and the insufficiency of lime in the system is one of the most prolific causes of human disease.

The scientist does more than express his faith in words. He is exploiting milk as a diet with all the resources at his command. Not long since he induced his company to put on a national advertising campaign, arguing for its more general consumption and he is carrying on investigations, so as to arm himself with information regarding the value of milk as a food. When this is whittled into practical form for presentation to the average individual, he will arm his company's thirty thousand agents with it and send them out among the people to talk milk and insurance.

It is not strange the Metropolitan company should be so deeply interested in this particular matter. It is the largest institution of its kind in the world. Its province is to teach prudence and the prologation of human life. Its vast resources can be put to no more useful and no more profitable purpose than that.

The election being passed, with to him happy result, Cautious Cal may now hurry along with his decision on the sugar tariff.

A FAINT GLEAM OF LIGHT

STATE Examiner F. P. Householder rules that a constable who arrests drivers for speeding, in a different township from that in which he resides, and collects fees from them as such constable, on them being fined, which is always the case, must return the fee on demand therefor.

In other words a constable has no right to invade a township other than his own and make an arrest of his own volition.

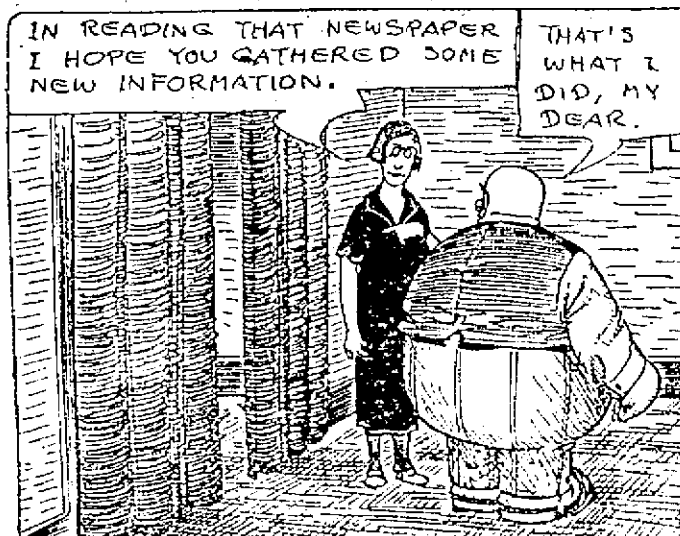

That's a common sense interpretation of the law and if on contention, it should be sustained by the courts, it will go far to break up a growing and vicious system of highway robbery and oppression by officers.

Covetous justices of the peace, or mayors of villages, all too numerous, living along heavily traveled highways, conspire with an equally covetous constable from some other township, or one of his own appointment to rake in some easy money entrapping automobilists and assessing fines and charging fees against them. The victim hasn't any more show, once in their greedy clutches than a snow ball in the torrid place. He's got to pay, then and there, or else face the horrors of the township hostile.

The Householder ruling ought to be the law. There is too much proneness among those who fatten on penal fees to go a-raiding promiscuously, with never an honest thought of beneficent enforcement of the law, but ever with the black flag of extortion flaunting.

NEW YORK DAY-BY-DAY

BY O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Thoughts little stirring around New York. The serpentine trail of the Sixth Avenue elevated. And impressions of the painting of the saloon low here. And a date of bright there. Always the little potted geranium in tenement windows.

Passengers nod unkindly of the clutter and shriek of rail against rail. A wigged woman holding tightly to the hand of her white-whiskered husband. Ruddy-cheeked butlers smelling of blood. Squid rooms where the sun never penetrates.

Recluse Street. And the turmoil of Fulton. Horse-drawn drags. Seniors with rolling gait. Noonday parties lunching on Trinity graves. There's Ralph Pulitzer of the World. Marble banks. Next door shoe shine stands and stool lunch counters.

A few steps away, Washington Street. New York's little Srin. Brick houses with cobblestoned courts. Windows displaying amber piped narghiles. Dried fruit. Roots. And mandolins. Coffee houses that sell mud thick coffee served by dark brown men in fezes.

Syrian women from the desert—big hip and placid. Rings in ears. Peddlers whose backs are piled high with rugs and lace. Signs in Arabic script. "Al Hoda"—the Syrian newspaper. And not so far away the view of the Statue of Liberty.

Old men, parched as a mummy, sewing in dim lit windows. And young girls smacking brass. First stages of Americanization—the jazz parlor. Coffee being ground in brass mortars and sold to the click of cash registers.

The wharves of West Street. Old frame hotels with projecting porches. The odor of fish, cinnamon, lemons. Two liners being unleashed for a voyage across. Cheers and fluttering handkerchiefs.

The elemental in song is always appealing. For have his gift. It was what lifted Gladia Gray from honky-tonk mediocrity to fame. Gladia brought with her the atmosphere of the honky-tonk without the breathal rhabdity. She has no voice, but when she sings people listen.

My favorite singer—if anyone cares—is John Steel. Aside from a pleasing voice he does not mumble his words. You know what he is singing. That is more than you can say for many Metropolitan stars.

And despite the fact Main Street is my love, my favorite tune is "The Sidewalks of New York." It perhaps isn't much of a tune, but it seems to me to describe the East Side better than any other song describes anything else. It smacks of the days that are gone—when New York was New York.
